

The Hebrew University of Jerusalem

We need carrots, not schtick!

The Hebrew University of Jerusalem is a beacon of light, competing with the world's top universities for the world's brightest minds. In years past, Israeli researchers have left for Cambridge, Harvard and Oxford. Now we want to tempt them back.

Recruiting the best international researchers is only half the challenge. It is up to the Hebrew University to provide all their requirements, whether a state-of-the-art gene splicing machine or a subscription to a specific legal journal.

Through scholarships and endowments, the University's international network of Friends provides resources wherever needed. If you'd like to offer a carrot to entice the world's best brains, call Julia on 020 7691 1474 or email julia.markson@bfhu.org
