

1. The Rector's Prize

The Hebrew University Rector's Prize for 2022 will be awarded to researchers, lecturers and Masters and Graduate-level students who have demonstrated excellence in the pursuit of research and education directly contributing to the academic advancement of the University

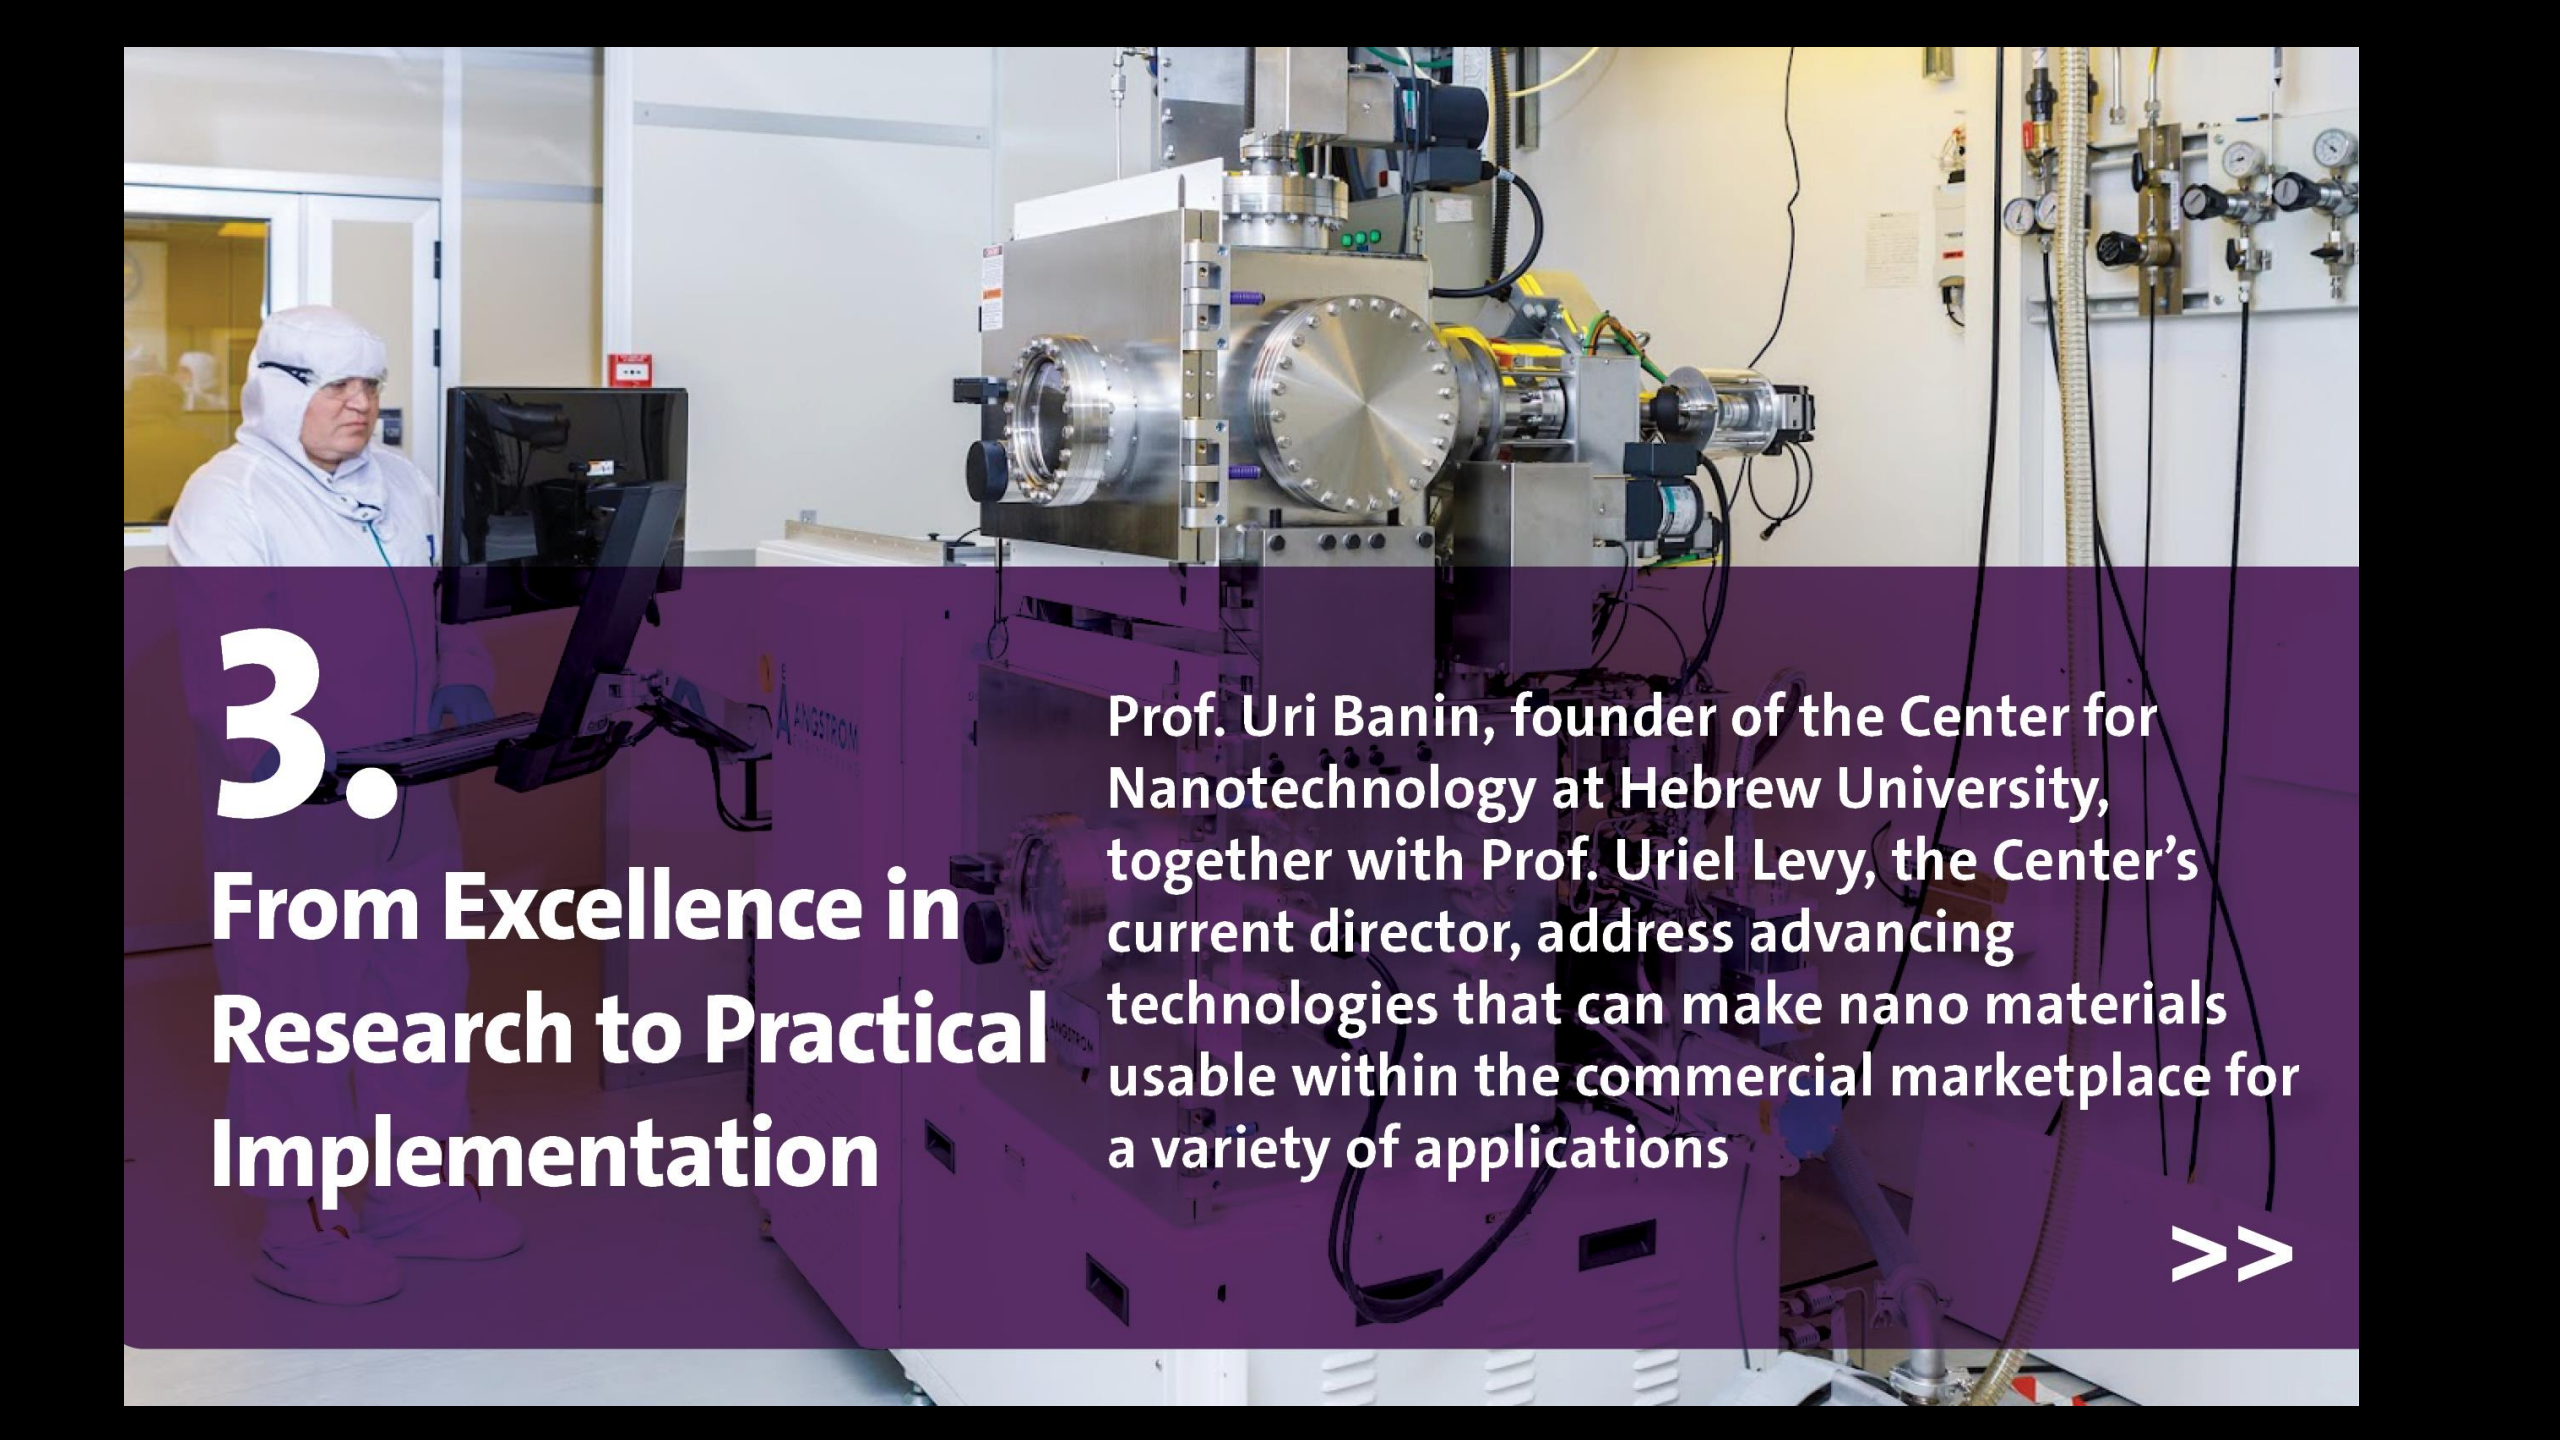

2.

In Support of Ukraine

The University administration and our student's union is proudly flying the Ukrainian flag in the flag plaza on the Mount Scopus campus in solidarity with the ongoing struggles of the Ukrainian people. The University is offering support to any students who are being personally affected by the war or who have family members who are being impacted

A photograph of a laboratory setting. On the left, a man wearing a white protective suit and hood is looking towards a large, complex piece of industrial machinery. The machine is primarily metallic and has several circular ports and various pipes. A computer monitor is visible in the foreground, partially obscured by a dark purple overlay. The background shows a clean, white laboratory environment with a door and some equipment on the wall.

3.

From Excellence in Research to Practical Implementation

Prof. Uri Banin, founder of the Center for Nanotechnology at Hebrew University, together with Prof. Uriel Levy, the Center's current director, address advancing technologies that can make nano materials usable within the commercial marketplace for a variety of applications

A large octopus with a mottled brown and white pattern is resting on a rocky seabed. Its long, thin arms are spread out, and its head is visible on the right side of the frame. The background is dark, suggesting an underwater environment.

4.● Eight-Legged Intelligence

A team of researchers led by Neurophysiologist Prof. Benny Hochner performed a twenty-year study analyzing the intelligence and memory capabilities of octopi

5.

The Latest from HUJICast

Glass ceilings in crowdfunding?

Prof. Orly Sadeh discusses whether men and women can be viewed as equal-level investors in crowdfunding campaigns? And if not, what are the reasons for any such discrepancies?

