

1. It's Too Early to Mourn the End of International Alliances

Prof. Danny Orbach penned an op-ed in “Yisrael Hayom” addressing the ongoing conflict between Ukraine and Russia, and how perceptions among the western nations have changed regarding Ukraine’s security needs. He discusses how these shifting winds impact on Israel’s relationship to the war in Europe

2.

A Podcast from the Davis Institute for International Relations

Special episodes following the war between between Russia and Ukraineis.

The podcast features Prof. Amnon Sela, Dr. Or Rabinovich and Dr. Jonathan Abramson

hosted by Lee Amram-Eilat

3.

The Anti-Vax Paradox

A study by Dr. Ruth Mayo and doctoral candidate Devora Newman has analyzed the paradox of how some people are willing to accept and embrace completely baseless new information, yet are just as prepared to reject data which is backed up by science and other credible sources

A man in a black suit and hat is holding a white envelope. He is standing in front of a metal fence at night. The background is dark with some lights. The text is overlaid on the image.

4.

Haredi Integration in the Workforce

A recent survey by Dr. Rona Stein from the aChord Center has analyzed the ability of haredi adults to integrate into the Israeli workforce. The study found that employers generally place low marks on their impressions of this sector to provide professional-level services, a finding that could have a negative impact on their overall ability to find gainful employment in various industries

5.

Coming Soon- Native Israeli Techina

A recent study conducted by doctoral student Idan Sabag under the direction of Prof. Zvi Peleg from the Faculty of Agriculture, Food and Environment, has uncovered the gene responsible for the mechanism connecting between the seed phase and the flowering of the plant. This discovery could help engineer sesame plants able to grow in different climates and regions – including Israel